BIOGRAPHY

Nick Bicanic is a filmmaker and a technologist who mixes left brain and right brain stuff on an ongoing basis.

He is a serial entrepreneur and has run multiple technology startups - funded by Silicon Valley luminaries including Google Ventures.

He also wrote, directed and produced "Shadow Company" the 4 time LEO award winning documentary about the secret world of modern day mercenaries and produced "The War Against Boko Haram" for VICE News and published his first book - "Executive Outcomes" - a graphic novel based on his script of the same name.

He was proud to have testified in front of the US Senate as a subject matter expert witness on the usage of mercenaries in modern warfare.

He has directed VR video projects in Haiti, Cuba, Paris and New York consults on VR/AR projects with multiple companies. He and his team have built VR apps for multiple leading VR content studios but he is now focusing on developing storytelling technology and content for VR and AR.

His favorite fruit is the Granny Smith Apple and he's also a helicopter pilot.
